HONGKONG, DECEMBER 12TH, 1870.

THE expulsion of the North German subjects from Saigon, of which mention was made on Saturday, cannot but be considered a matter for much regret. It is difficult to see what practical good can be worked by the measure : while its evil effects in tending to create warm blood in a distant part of the world, where it is most desirable that foreigners should not appear before the native populations as divided among themselves, cannot main of that establishment as a universal be overlooked. The supposition that the belligerent, who wanted to fight one and all its few Germans in Saigon would be likely to cause any disturbance in the place, is too with having broken a piece of furnitura in the ridiculous to be entertained. Twenty-five furnished lodging to which he had been obliged or thirty traders in a Colony guarded by two thousand trained troops could not have caused any apprehension to the most timid, so that, upon this ground, there could be no reason for the step. The only other valid Houskong, attempted to effect the sale of a goods bought pretention-ly from some of the guide them to a right decision. reason for the measure, might be found in the possibility of information being conveyed which might be of a dangerous nature. But all the information that could possibly be be had under pretence of having bought ber sent from a small place like Saigon, could of events; as, if Prussia has any designs, against Saigon, it is not likely that she would enter upon active hostilities, but First prisoner, twelve months; see and prisoner, would simply endeavour to carry them out by negotiation. Eurther, it cannot but be an impolitic step to give any opportunity for dragging Saigon into the questions, which must ere long be settled between the two nations; while the effects of the measure on Joseph Saleede did him sessuit with a bamb-10, masters frequenting this port, as it is generally ful band to overthrow the Peking Convention the commercial interests of the place can hardly be over-estimated.

All these circumstances combine to make he stop one deeply to be regretted, and becomes a wonder how people, usually so far thted as the French, can have committed such an error. It appears probable that it has not originated alone, if at all, with the GOVERNOR, who has the credit of being a shrewd, careful and temperate man, It is to was too strong to be resisted, and that the authorities have been thus induced to adopt a measure against what, it may fairly be imagined, their own better judgment dictated.

It is really painful to be compelled to allude over and over again to the same public abuses in Hongkopg in almost the same words; but, when it is found that they are repeatedly recurring, and that, so far from the Government taking any steps to remedy them, they appear only anxious to hush them up, nothing is left but to make a point of calling attention to them whenever they come afresh before the public On Saturday the report of a case at the Magistracy was given, which displays in a most painful mannor the working of the informer system in Hongkong. The matter is briefly related. One of the employes of one of Mr. CALD-WELL's informers was convicted of baving trumped up an entirely false charge against a Chinaman, who was about to leave in a Macao passage-boat. It seems that the informer went on to the junk, and demanded that one of the men should come on above return to Hongkong she was chartered to go to with him, or if not, should give him his Foodbow and thence to Sydney, and as plaintiff. jacket. A scuffle ensued, which resulted in the former getting hold of the man whom he had endeavoured to squeeze, giving him and the wages due to him. The present action in charge of a Chinese Police Sergeant, and was brought to try his right to be provided by then bringing a false accusation against bim at the Magistracy. Mr. Russers, after a careful investigation of the facts, sentenced the informer, to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour, and ordered that he should afterwards find security in $200. This sentence will no doubt meet the approval of the public, and it is to be hoped that the like defendants represented by Mr. T. G. Limitead. severity will be shown in all cases of the

The circumstances which are brought to light, however, are of the most serious description. We here find that the Chinese in Hongkong are pestered by rascals utterly second-class, to be $330, and that by the Lord removed from the madow of control. The man just convicted was not even one of Mr. CALDWELL's informers, but was actually Linstead. The former stated that he had had an employe of a man employed by him, and of whom he had no knowledge whatever. Is but that he reserved his secent. Mr. Limstend this not a disgraceful state of affairs? It is state! that the new agreement was distinctly uscless to say more with regard to it. The misfortunes which have recently befullen the coolie slripe from Macao are noteworthy and lamentable. In addition to the terrible affair of the Uncouged, we hear that the French barque L'Ollivier, from Macao to Peru with coolies, grouded off Sumatra, and when taken by a French war steamer to Batavis, was in such a condition as to be pronounced unasaworthy. Her coolies were landed there. San Salvadorian ship America, bound from Ollao to Macao, has put in to Saigon, baving encountered two typhoons, and she was also not n a navigable state.

THE SIEGE OF PARIS (Speciator, October 15th.) Count Biamarck is evidently restless under the defence of Paris. Should the defence be whether it is worth his prosecuting at the protracted to the hist, there would be danger of cost of giving a perty advantage to his political catastrophe which would overwholm all Europe opponents. It would take a week to aupply it. for the bearest point in Havre, the rail ways being out, and the belt round the city stripped bare. The Germans could not emply it for they have barely enough for thomselves; and even if London were permitted to make the effort, it ould not be accomplished under a week. Count Bismarck, foreseeing that so awful a catastrophe, produced by Germany in order to gain a province, would permanently aliento the ympathics of mankind, has accordingly emadied all the facts in a Giroular to the foreign ugents of Germany, which ends by declaring that the responsibility rests with the rulers of France, -an assertion which, true once, is not them as medical agouts. THE LESSON OF THE PRUSSIAN WAR

This was the title of a le joure d livered Mr. P. H. Rathbone to members of the Everton Liberal Association, in the school-room of the Rev. Mr. Thomas's Chapel, Netherfieldrond South, Mr. James Cooban presided, and there was a good attendance. The lecturer said that the first lesson they had to learn was that with regard to our army. It was not merely marching and firing that would have to be attended to, but it was having an army which was a complete machine (bear hear!) -an army which could trust its officers, and officers who could not only manage a regiment but an army. If they did not learn that lesson their volunteers would be merely a mob to be run over by the first army that attacked there is an uprour. But do they imagine that them .- (Appleuse.) A reason why the Prusclans walked through France, was that the Prossian army, materil of being a standing army, was to a great extent a citizenarmy, - (applause.) -and had the control of the whole population. If every man in England went through a short probation in the army he would be a better citizen, a better workman, and a better man, and it would make every mun prepared to defend his country; and he, therefore, advocated this in connexion with their having as small a standing army as possible - (Hear, bear!) He orged the necessity of an improvement in the was the dunger of the ignorance of and to the chairman for presiding.

MR. RUSKIN ON THE WAR Mr. Ruskin, in the T. legraph of the 8th Oc declares that neither the French nation not their Emperor brought on wan by any present will of their own. Neither of them were capable of a will ut all, far less of executing it. "The nation has since declared, by submission with Loslaim, to a change of government which for the time renders all political treats with it practically impossible, that during the last twenty years it has been deceived or subno respect, and who had no bereditary claim to the throne. What " will " or responsibility of antion can be expected from a nation which confesses this of itself? On the other hand could only have hoped to save his dynasty by compliance with the passions of a populace which he knew would overthrow it in the first passions and the falsehoods on which they have fed that we must look for the deep roots of all Empire no cotture in France has been without its Napoleonic picture and legend, fostering one and the name faith in the beart of every peasant boy, that there is no glory but in battle; and since the founding of the second Empire no. street of any city has riven into its foolish magnificence without collateral proclamation that there was no pleasure but in vice." Coming to the actual question of the war, it is, Mr. Ruskin says, a simple and testing struggle between pure Republicanism on the one side. expressed in the most exquisite, finished, and exemplary anarchy yet achieved under-earth- the consequences of particular evasions. and one of the truest monarchies and schools of

THE NEW AMERICAN MINISTER

(Pall Mall Gazette.) One of the most respectable and impartial newspapers in the United States informs no that Mr. Morton, the Senator for Indiana, who has been, or had b en selected to succeed Mr. Motley in the American mission to this country, is totally unfitted for the post which he is incountry seem to follow inevitably. A thoroughly incompetent person has been chosen to represent the United States in England, and his instructions are first, to bully us; and, next, in a very probable event, to threaten us with war. But this incompetent person entrusted with this formidable mission regards this undertaking with such diadain that he doubts

The scoretary, it appears. was horrified at these specimens of Phurmacoposin, and doubted the propriety of classifying dical business, as these articles are by no means dung, Spanish tiles, and many other remedies of this class are among the most efficient and common in use among our homospathic friends; while cochineal (a little insect,) cantharides or Spanish fries, and until resently many other inscris and animals constituted a portion of the regular Pharmacoposia.

The truth is, all of these disgustog preparations are the relics of superstition nd ignorance, and as such will soon be exinged from the Materia Medica.

DOR scope and practical service this Work atands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese bave of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in ocience generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bere given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the sixe of body, thereby electing a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have beretofore characterized Chinese publications. The sepperof the work in so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a re-ference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chiness. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in SUPPLIED AND REFITTED.

China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few in-deed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in

(Pall Mail Gassite, Oct. 14th.) Even amid the turmoil of the great European struggle the intelligence from America announring that General Robert E. Lee is dead, will be received with deep sorrow by many in this |-use at once and freely BRISTOL'S SARSAcountry, as well as by his followers and fellow- PARILDA. andliers in A nericu. It is but a few years since Robert, Lee ranked among the great mon of the present time. He was the able soldier of the Southern Confederacy, the bulwark of her northern frontier, the abstacle to the silvance of the Federal armies, and the leader. who twice threatened by the capture of Washinglon to turn the tide of success, and to accomplish in revolution which would have changed the destiny of the United States! Six years passed by, and then we beard that he was dying at an obscure town in Virginia, where, since the collapse of the Confederacy, he had been acting as a shooolmaster. When nt the head of the last 8,000 of his valiant army, the promunts which babile, sickness, and famine had left him, be delivered up award to General Grant at Appomattox Court House, his public cureer onded; he pussed away from men's thoughts; and fow in Europe care to inquire the fate of the General whose exploits but aroused the wonder of neutrals and belligerenta, and whose noble character had excited the n imiration of even the most bitter of his political enemies. If, however, success is not niways to be accounted as the sole foundation of renown, Jeneral Lee's life and career deserve to be held n reverence by all who admire the talents of a general and the noblest qualities of a soldier. His family were well known in Virginia. Descended from the Cavaliers who first colonized that State, they had produced more than one man who fought with distinction for their country. They were allied by marriage to Washington, and previous to the recent war were possessed of much wealth; General, then Colonel. Robert Leeresiding, when not employed with his regiment, at Arlington Heights, one of the most beautful places in the neighbourhood of Washington. When the civil was first broke out he was a colonel in the United States army, who had served with distinction in Merico, and was accounted among the best of the American officers. To him, as to others, the difficult choice presented itself, whether to take the side of his State, which had jouned in the secession of the South, or to support the Central Government. It is said that Lee debated the matter with General Scott, then commander-inchief, that both agreed their first duty lay with practice what each held in theory. It was not until the second year of the war that Lee came prominently forward, when, at Bichmond, General Johnston baring been wounded, he took command of the army; and subacquently drove M'Clellan, with great loss, to the banks of the James river .- From that time he became the recognized leader of the Confederate army of Virginia. He repulsed wave after wave of invasion, army after army being hurled against bim only to be thrown buck, beaten and in disorder. The Government at Washington were kept in constant alarm by the near vicinity of his treops, and witnessed more than once the entry into their entrenchments of a defeated and disorganized rabble which a few days previous had left them a confident host. Twice he entered the Northern States at the head of a successful army, and turned the fortune of the war. He impresse ed his character on those who acted under him. Ambition for him had no charms; duty nione was his guide. His simplicity of life checkel luxury and display among his officers, while his disregard of hardships ilenced the murmure of his harrassed soldiers. By the troops he was loved as a father as well as 1-to-the bowels :- need we say that this medicine admired as a general; and his deeply religious character impressed itself on all who were brought in contact with him, and made itself. folt through the ranks of the Virginian army. It is said that during four years of war he never alept in a house, but in winter and summer shared the hardships of his soldiers. Such was the man who in mature age, at a period of life long years of careful and laborious study; and when few generals have acquired renown; fought in saying they are the best of all pargatives against overwhelming odds for the cause which he believed just. He saw many of his brayest generals and desrest friends fall around bim. but although constantly exposed to fire, escaped

The battles which prolonged and finally decided the issue of the contest are now little more than names. Antietam, Fredericksburg. Chancelloraville, and Gettysburg are forgotten n Europe by all excepting those who study recent wars as lessons for the future, and would collect from the deeds of other armies experience | are of no particular use or benefit to those who which they may apply to their own. To them the boldness of Lee's tactics at Chancellorsville will ever be a subject of admiration; while even those who least sympathize with his cause will feel for the General who naw the repulse of Longstreat's charge at Gettysburg, and beheld the failure of an attempt to convert a defensive war into one of attack, together with the conhe had hoped would terminate the contest. he railied the broken troops; taking all the blame on himself, he encouraged the officers, dispirited by the reverse, and in person formed up the scattered detachments. Again, when fortune bad turned against the Confederacy, when overwhelming forces from all sides pressed butk her defenders, Lee for a year held his ground with a constantly diminishing army, fighting-battle after battle in the forests and swumps around Richmond, No reverses seemed to dispirit him, no misfortune appeared to ruffle his calm, brave temperament. Only at last when he saw the remnants of his noble army about to be ridden down by Sheridan's cavalry. when 8,000 men, half-starved and broken with fatigue, were surrounded by the vast set which Grant and Sherman had spread around them, did he wield : his fortitude for the moment gave way; he took a last forewell of his soldiers, and, giving himself up as a prisoner, retired a ruined man into private life, gaining his bread hy the lard uncongenial work of governing Lexington College.

When polical animosity has calmed down and when Americans cin look buck on those years of war with feelings unbinesed by party strife, then will General Lee's character be appreciated by his countrymen as it now is by part, and his name will be bonoured as that of one of the noblest soldiers who have ever drawn sword in a cause which they believed just, and at the macrifice of all personal considerations have fought manfully a losing battle. Even amid the excitement of the terrible war now raging in Europe, some may still care to carry their thoughts back to the career of the great and good man who now lies dead in Virginia. scenes in which a short time ago to bore so

The Lyons correspondent of the Standard BRYS:-" Myself rather leaning, for the sake of France, to a restoration of the Napolennic dynasty, I must tell you bonestly I have not spoken to a single Frenchinan, urban or raral, who shared my opinions, or who treated the very idea of such a restoration as anything but a reprouch to the intelligence of the country. I am sorry for it, but my business is to tell the trath."
